

Family Violence
Response Centre

One in three Australian women have experienced violence from a current or former partner in their lifetime.

61 per cent of Australian women experiencing family violence had children in their care whilst the violence occurred.

People fleeing family violence make up at least 36 per cent of demand for homelessness services in Australia. Most of these are women and their children.

Women in Australia are three times more likely than men to experience violence from a partner.

In 2016, on average more than one woman a week lost her life due to family violence.
